HOW TO CHECK FOR LEAKS:

- Look at the water consumption posted on your January and February bill. If you have a family of four, and your consumption exceeds 16 Units per month, you may have a bad leak.
- To check for toilet leaks, add a leak detector tablet or a drop of food coloring into the toilet tank. If any color ends up in the bowl after 10 minutes, you have a leak. If there is a leak, it is likely due to a worn-out toilet flapper.
- Listen to your irrigation valves for the sound of a leak. If your irrigation valves are leaking, you will likely hear a hissing noise.
